Getting started with Improvement Cycles

Review these diagrams and consider the following questions. We encourage you to review and discuss these with your team and/or to write down your responses.

Thinking about a current or upcoming initiative:

- How could you better utilize Improvement Cycles in your work?
- How can formal, transparent, and regular methods for hearing from the practice level (e.g., about what’s working) and then moving information up the system and back down, support effective implementation of new programs and innovations? What are the challenges to developing such processes? What might facilitate developing these practice-policy communication cycles

The Active Implementation Hub, AI Modules and AI Lessons are developed by the State Implementation & Scaling-up of Evidence-based Practices Center (SISEP) and The National Implementation Research Network (NIRN) located at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill’s FPG Child Development Institute.
